Join Us in Studying Virginia's
Maritime Heritage

Who we are

The Maritime Heritage Chapter of the Archeological Society of Virginia was created in 2016 to provide opportunities and training for diving and non-diving volunteers of all skill levels to participate in a statewide effort to study and protect underwater archaeological sites in Virginia's waters.

Our mission is to promote and facilitate the stewardship, public appreciation and value of Virginia's maritime archaeological heritage through research, partnerships and citizen and community engagement.

York River Acoustic Survey, April 2018

What we do

Support the Virginia Department of Historic Resources by encouraging and supporting the stewardship and wise use of Virginia's significant underwater architectural, archaeological, and historic resources as valuable assets for the economic, educational, social, and cultural benefit of citizens and communities.

Enhance public engagement through promoting heritage tourism, developing volunteer opportunities, giving talks, demonstrations, and lesson plans to schools and educational centers, and speaking to dive clubs, civic organizations, and other public events.

Assist local government by supporting their efforts to preserve and protect regional archaeological resources, assisting with local archaeological ordinances and preservation plans. Providing professional archaeological assistance with local archaeological emergencies, advising local government on best management practices for archaeological sites.

How to Get Involved

We are looking for participants of all ages—divers and non-divers—to join us for lectures, training, public events, and field work as we seek to learn more about Virginia's maritime past and to share our knowledge with others.
